

Aim: What did Skipper Find?

Skipper the Swing it Squirrel ~~had~~ was playing by his Cousins' house when he remembered that he was supposed to call his mother ^{before} ~~when~~ leaving his cousins' house. So, here he was calling her up. "Hello," his mother said. "Yes, I'm about to leave Cousins' house, okay." "Okay fine," his mother said, "See you soon, bye." Skipper the Swing it Squirrel skipped his way home, ~~and~~ happily humming a sweet tune. Finally, he arrived home, and dashed to his brand new swingset. Suddenly, he noticed fresh footprints ⁱⁿ the earth, so he decided to follow them, and find out where these big footsteps led to. As he reached the last footprint he realized that he was standing in front of a ~~larger larger~~ large wooden clubhouse. "Oh how interesting, this clubhouse has never been here before, I wonder who built it," Skipper thought.

He was about to climb up the rickety wooden clubhouse steps to try to find out, when... "Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday to you, Happy Birthday to you!" Rushing out of the clubhouse came Skipper's friends, neighbors and all of his siblings. "We would never forget your birthday," announced Jumpy the Juggler squirrel. The big crowd led Skipper into the clubhouse, and they all sat down to a delicious party filled with all sorts of fancy delicacies, and a ^{big} birthday cake decorated with colorful sprinkles and bright pink icing rolling down the sides of the cake.

The rest of the party continued with many games, and lots and lots of fun. As the party ~~ended~~ came to a close Skipper the Swing it Squirrel exclaimed, "This was my best surprize birthday party ever, thank you all so much!!
